SKLC Comedy Night Starring Joel Chasnoff and Honoring Jan Nirenberg

Saturday, April 6, 6:30 pm

Join us for an evening of good food, drinks, Havdalah, entertainment, building community, securing our future, and raffles!

Cocktails start at 6:30 pm, followed by dinner, entertainment and silent and live auction. The cost is $75 per person; all proceeds will benefit the Sandi Kupperman Learning Center which provides educational programming for all ages. R.S.V.P. by March 18.

Jan is a philanthropist who understands that it is imperative to give back to the local community. Jan, and her late husband Charlie (z"l), were members of Temple Beth El for more than half a century. Jan has devoted herself to our temple and we appreciate her generous support with her leadership, participation and financial resources.

"Jan's love for life is palpable. She always gives generously and enjoys attending classes, programs and services. I am delighted to be honoring Jan for all that she has done for our congregation, particularly our educational programs. Jan was the first to step forward to support our sanctuary rennovation with a gift of $100,000. Without her generosity, we would not be where we are today," commented Rabbi Amy Katz.

To show our appreciation for Jan's wonderful contributions to our community, we will be showing a large-screen, electronic ad book during the evening. Sponsors can run ads or leave messages of appreciation. Visit our website at thespringfield.org for details.

Part of the evening's festivities will be an art auction, with the proceeds benefiting the SKLC. If you own gently-used art that you would be willing to donate for the auction, contact Caryn Resnick cresnick@tbespringfield.org or (413) 737-0170 to make arrangements.

In the Deep South, a Rich Jewish Heritage Discovered

Debbie Peskin

Far from the teeming urban centers of the Northeast, where the largest concentration of American Jews traditionally lived at the turn of the 20th century, small yet vibrant Jewish communities flourished in the unlikeliest of places.

21/2 hours north of New Orleans lies one such place. The small city of Natchez, Mississippi was an important center of trade along the mighty Mississippi River until the Civil War began. Here, the Jewish populace thrived, and became an important part of the community.

This past December, we took a family trip to the fascinating city of New Orleans, and decided to include a side trip to Natchez, a place we had heard about years ago but never had a chance to visit. Natchez is a charming city famous for its abundance of beautiful antebellum and Victorian mansions, many of which are open for tours. If you like historic accommodations, you can choose from more than 45 mansions which have been turned into B&Bs. The city has more than 1,000 buildings listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

My husband, David, enjoys conducting extensive research prior to our trips, and as he was working on our itinerary, he suggested we go to Natchez to see, among other things, its renowned synagogue, founded in 1843. Natchez had a small but very influential Jewish community which sadly has virtually disappeared. As you walk on the main streets downtown, you can see the names of many Jewish merchants atop of the buildings they once owned. Historic informational signs also mention the prosperous Jewish residents who played an important role in its economic development. For example, Natchez's Jews played a crucial role in financing the city's rebirth after the economic ruin brought on by the Civil War.

Temple B'nai Israel, built in 1905, is open for tours. It features a dome, beautiful stained-glass windows, and ark of Italian marble. Originally built to seat 350 worshipers, the synagogue now offers bi-weekly Shabbat services for 10 or fewer people. The last full-time rabbi retired in 1976, and for many years afterwards the congregation was able to attract student and visiting rabbis. Now too small to attract clergy, lay leaders run the services. The synagogue is beloved and supported by the entire community, and some of the Erev Shabbat...

Off the Bimah

Rabbi Amy Wallk Katz

When we first moved to the area, searching for the hametz was one of my favorite family rituals. My children were young, and they thoroughly enjoyed staying up, taking a candle and hunting for hametz in a house that had already been scoured for crumbs! It was like a Jewish game of hide and seek. I hid the hametz and the children searched for it. Once the hametz was found, we would go for ice cream and in the morning we would burn the hametz. We did all this the night before Seder. While the children were always so excited for relatives to come in town and celebrate, I was always exhausted. But it was part of the Passover preparations and I loved watching the kids hunt for the hidden hametz.

That was then. And now it is different. My children were younger. I'll admit that these past few years the hide and seek game has been more challenging. Teenagers aren't as easy to engage in this whimsical activity.

I share this with you because I really understand that many Jewish rituals, like rituals in general, have a life-span. Sometimes they are accessible and bring great meaning, and other times they feel strange, silly or maybe perfunctory. I would suggest that one of the challenges we adults have is to keep our Judaism fresh.

I will be honest. We won't search for hametz this year. My children are too old! For a few years, I tried to push the ritual. But it just didn't work. Rather than feeling empty or disappointed, I decided to recognize that my children are young adults. The morning of the Seder I will continue to burn the hametz. But I have learned that making that fire won't be as exciting for my children as it once was. And that is OK. Today won't be like yesterday and tomorrow will also bring something new!

For now, I will relish the fact that my children are perfectly capable and interested in participating in a thoughtful discussion at the Passover Seder. And rather than force yesterday's rituals to bring meaning to their lives, I will work on making today's rituals age-appropriate and meaningful.

As Purim and Passover draw near, I hope you will also consider which rituals need to be refreshed, which need to be retired, and which need to be incorporated into your family observance.

Discussion topics for your Seder

"You shall not wrong a stranger or oppress him, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." (Exodus 22:21)

"You shall not oppress a stranger since you yourselves know the feelings of a stranger, for you too were strangers in the land of Egypt." (Exodus 23:9) Our tradition goes further than this. Most audaciously, it orders us: "You must love the stranger as yourself!" (Leviticus 19:34)

Does American immigration policy reflect these lofty exhortations? Defend your answer. In your discussion, try to distinguish among the following:

- Naturalized American citizens
- Legal immigrants who have a permit to live and work in the United States.
- Unauthorized immigrants (also known as illegal immigrants)
- Refugees

March 21 - Sin and Repentance

March 28 - Rights of Passage / Lifecycle

April 4 - I Haven't Got a Prayer –
Thoughts and Questions on What Happens When We Pray.

April 11 - Spiritual Seeking in Modern Times

Leading the discussions will be clergy from TBE and Sinai Temple, and area Catholic and Protestant clergy members. No prior knowledge required. Just you and your curiosity. This is a continuation of the sessions that were held last fall, but you do not have to have attended those classes in order to participate. No need to sign up—Just Show Up (at Sinai Temple).

Congregant Profiles

Over the past 10 years, we have included the Congregant Profile column in Tekiah on a regular basis. Many of our members have written short articles about themselves and their families, and it has been a great way to get to know both familiar faces and new members. In fact, we have included articles written by the majority of our members. We want to give anyone who has not already been included the opportunity to write an article for an upcoming issue. If you would like to be added to the list, please contact Debbie Peskin at 733-4149 or communications@tbespringfield.org.

Tomorrow's Leaders

From time to time, we like to highlight the extraordinary work of young adults who are making a difference by working or volunteering in a Jewish community, anywhere in the world. In this column, we learn first-hand about their work when they share, in their own words, what inspires them and how our synagogue has served as an influence. If you would like us to include your young adult child or grandchild in a future issue, please contact Debbie Peskin at 733-4149 or communications@ tbespringfield.org.

Book Discussion Group News

Liz Marinelli, Librarian

10:30 am in the library. all are welcome

The book group will meet on March 27 to discuss The Tattooist of Auschwitz by Heather Morris. This novel, which is based on the true story of an Auschwitz-Birkenau survivor, traces the experience of a Jewish prisoner who uses his position as a concentration camp tattooist to secure food for his fellow prisoners.

In April we will take our annual break from reading to enjoy a film--on April 10 we will watch the documentary GI Jews: Jewish Americans in World War II. In their own words, veterans both famous and unknown bring their war experience to life: how they fought for their nation, struggled with anti-Semitism within their ranks, and emerged transformed. We will meet earlier than usual at 10:00 am in order to have enough time to view the film.

Hesed Kitchen

This monthly program has provided many of our congregants with delicious and home-made food after an illness or following the loss of a loved one. Volunteers are invited to join Rabbi Katz in her kitchen to help prepare comfort food such as soup, kugel, bread, etc. which will be frozen and delivered to our members when the need arises. If you would like to help with this effort, please call the TBE office at 733-4149 for the dates in March and April.

The library is always adding new books to the collection; here are a few of the newest:

Israeli Soul: Easy, Essential, Delicious by Michael Solomonov and Steven Cook. From the award-winning authors of Zahav, a collection of recipes that focus on the great dishes which are the soul of Israeli cuisine, including such options as sabich, schawarma, hummus, falafel and schnitzel.

Dear Zealots: Letters From a Divided Land by Amos Oz. The late Israeli author offers three powerful essays that directly address our present age on the rise of zealotry in Israel and around the world.

Lake Success: A Novel by Gary Shteyngart. A self-made Wall Street millionaire, baffled by the implosion of his seemingly perfect life, takes a cross-country bus trip in search of his college sweetheart and the ideals of his youth.

During the month of March, we will continue our discussion of Pirkei Avot.

Please note that Cuppa Joe will not meet in April.

Pirkei Avot is comprised of a wonderful collection of ethics. Complied around 200 CE, it is one of the best-known and mostcited of Jewish texts. The teachings range in topic from the ethics of everyday human interaction, to advice for scholars and aspiring scholars, to statements about the relationship of God and humanity. The worldview espoused by the rabbis quoted here emphasizes learning, service of God, discipleship, ethical behavior, humility, and fair judgment.

& Learn Returns

Thursday, March 14, 21, 28 at 12:00 pm

We are happy to announce the return of Lunch & Learn! We will watch the popular Israeli TV series, Shtisel. This show follows the lives of an ultra-Orthodox family in Jerusalem. The storylines include bereavement, the fading health of an elderly mother, power struggles within a religious elementary school, and the search for a future spouse. The show is really very funny, and gives a window into the Haredi world. Rabbi Katz will lead a discussion about each show. Please bring a dairy lunch and join us to watch the show and have a lively discussion afterwards.

Members of the Katz Family Book Group discuss the novel Not Our Kind by Kitty Zeldis at their January meeting.

Dr. Watson noted that "there is a long history of partisanship, gridlock, and incivility in American politics, but it has been a long time since the nation has experienced the kind of dysfunction that now seems to define so much of our politics." His lecture will explore the history of political dysfunction in an effort to both understand it and to suggest how the current crisis might be resolved.

Bill and Lynn Foggle explained why they wanted Dr. Watson as a speaker, "We are delighted to be introducing Dr. Robert Watson to our community. He is not only an amazing and knowledgeable historian, he's a marvelously entertaining speaker and story teller. We have been to dozens of his lectures over many years and have been amazed at the diversity and depth of his knowledge. We're convinced that you'll want to hear him as often as we do."

Dr. Watson's recent books include The Ghost Ship of Brooklyn: An Untold Story of the American Revolution (2017). In that work, he recounts the most horrific struggle of the American Revolution, which occurred just 100 years ago off the coast of New York. In that incident more men died aboard a rotting prison ship than were lost to combat during the entirety of the war. The book won the John Barry and John Lyman Book Award and is the subject of an upcoming National Geographic TV special. In another one of his books, The Nazi Titanic: The Incredible Untold Story of a Doomed Ship in World War II (2016), Watson writes about the littleknown story of the most intriguing ship ever to set sail. Built in 1927, the German ocean liner SS Cap Arcona was the greatest ship since the RMS Titanic. When the Nazis seized control in Germany, the SS Cap Arcona was used as a floating barracks and troop transport. It was also cast as the "star" in a propaganda film about the sinking of the Titanic and ultimately was packed with thousands of concentration camp prisoners. Just days before Germany surrendered, the vessel was mistakenly bombed by the British Royal Air Force and nearly all of the prisoners were killed in what was the last major tragedy of the Holocaust and one of the worst maritime disasters in history. This book is being made into a motion picture and a Discovery Channel TV special. Finally, his newest book, George Washington's America, will be released in late 2019.

A frequent media commentator, Watson has been interviewed thousands of times by news outlets, including CNN, MSNBC, USA Today, The New York Times, NPR, Hardball with Chris Matthews, and The Daily Show with Jon Stewart.

Dr. Watson has co-convened numerous national conferences on the American presidency, co-founded the annual Truman Legacy Symposium for the Truman Presidential Library, and served as a visiting scholar with dozens of organizations, such as the Truman Presidential Library, Gerald Ford Presidential Museum, Illinois Holocaust Museum, US Military Academy at West Point, and the National Archives.

Dr. Watson is the recipient of numerous awards for his election commentary, community service, civics and civility programs, leadership against anti-Semitism and hate, and contributions to the study of the presidency. He has also won several teaching excellence awards, including Outstanding Teacher of the Year and Faculty Service Award at Florida Atlantic University and Lynn University, and has been inducted into two sports halls of fame.

As a community leader and volunteer, he has hosted many voter registration drives, mock elections and civic education programs for schools, workshops for teachers, and served as a moderator for political debates and community town halls. He has lectured at civic and professional groups, libraries, museums, historic sites, and is a popular lecturer with the prestigious One Day University and luxury cruise ships.

Dr. Watson currently holds the title Distinguished Professor of American History and Director of Project Civitas at Lynn University in Boca Raton, FL, and serves as Senior Fellow with Senator Bob Graham's Florida Joint Center for Citizenship.

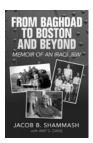

This program is free and open to the public.

From Baghdad to Boston and Beyond: Memoir of an Iraqi Jew by Jacob Shammash

Presentation by Amy Dane, the eldest Shammash daughter

Sunday, April 7 at 4:00 pm

When he immigrated to the U.S. from Baghdad in 1947, TBE member Jacob Shammash had no idea that his timing was fortuitous or that he would never see his beloved homeland again.

Amy S. Dane, the first of Jake's five children, editor of his memoir, and TBE member, is a freelance lecturer. Her visual presentation will set the stage for her father and his large family, characters in a tragic drama, by unraveling the fascinating yet horrific sequence of events culminating in the death knell of the 2,600-year-old Iraqi Jewish community.

The Shammash family reinvented themselves. They joined the successive wave of immigrants who have graced our shores and contributed to American society, carving out new and prosperous lives for themselves and the next generation.

TBE is pleased to host this program in partnership with the JCC's Literatour program. There is no cost to attend.

Shabbat Zimrah Services

Our next Shabbat Zimrah service will be held on Friday, March 8 and April 12 at 6:00 pm. Please join us for this lively, 1-hour service featuring Cantor Barber and guest musicians. During the service, we will recognize our members who have birthdays during the months of March and April.

Spotlight on Jewish National Fund

David Peskin

We all remember them—those ubiquitous, blue and white tin boxes that said "make the wilderness bloom." These small tzedakah boxes were found in Jewish homes and business throughout the United States. They were the symbol of one of the most venerable of all Jewish philanthropies, the Jewish National Fund (JNF). Quite simply, JNF was famed for planting thousands upon thousands of trees in Israel. And justly so-they did a remarkable job of it. But, today, some 118 years after its founding, JNF does so much more than just build forests. The story of JNF in the 21st century is indeed a compelling one, and it's worth a closer look to see some of the amazing things JNF is working on.

All right then, you may ask, "What exactly is today's JNF doing that is so exciting and worthy of our support?" There are many answers to that question. JNF is involved in so many critical aspects of Israeli society. Such as helping to build new communities in the south (Negev) and north (Galilee) areas to aid in managing the tiny country's population growth. Or sponsoring rehabilitation facilities for the disabled, from inclusion into the Israel Defense Forces to a therapeutic horseback riding center. Not to mention world-class, environmental research and development, including working with the renowned Arava Institute for Environmental Studies, which you have heard Rabbi Katz speak of over the past several years.

That's a pretty full plate—and that's not the whole of it. But if you were to ask, "Well, what's the one thing JNF does that may be the most important of all?" I would have to answer with one word. Water. Yes, water. The stuff we take for granted here in New England. In the Mideast, no one takes water for granted. Under the best of circumstances, there isn't enough for all the residents of this arid land. After many consecutive years of drought, the problems have grown worse. In Israel, the problems may be best illustrated by the Kinneret (more commonly known as the Sea of Galilee), which continues to recede as the water levels drop each year.

The success of desalination in Israel has gained worldwide notoriety, with Israeli technology behind major desalination projects in California. Desalination has made a huge impact, but at a cost—desalinated water is extremely expensive and the high price has hurt the Israeli agricultural industry, which requires water for irrigation in order to survive. Here's where INF is making a huge impact, by going beyond desalination to help solve Israel's water crisis. Over the years, JNF has built 250 reservoirs throughout Israel. Every one of these reservoirs stores recycled water for regional communities. The recycled water reservoirs are actually the final stage in a complex process that involves purifying sewage, then treating and storing the recycled water in reservoirs, where it then can be used in irrigation. Incredibly, more than 50% of Israel's agricultural water now comes from recycled water stored in JNF-built reservoirs. JNF's ambitious, but attainable, goal is to build 90 new reservoirs in order to reach its goal that 95% of the agricultural water supply is recycled. JNF water technology, including some advanced water drilling techniques, are being used not only in Israel, but in developing African nations as well. In a thirsty world, JNF is really making a profound difference.

In the past few years, we've heard a lot about the divide in American Jewish support for Israel. Here's the bottom line—no matter your view of Israeli politics, if you support the state of Israel, you should support the Jewish National Fund. At JNF, politics are irrelevant. Instead, JNF offers a longstanding, proud record of protecting, supporting, and nurturing the land, and the people, of Israel. So how can you learn more about all the exciting and worthwhile things JNF is doing? Start by checking out their excellent website, www.jnf.org. Plan to attend some upcoming events. Watch Tekiah and TBE emails for future listings, and come hear more about this inspirational organization. Consider going on a JNF trip or mission to Israel to see their work for yourself. (There was a great article in a recent issue of the Massachusetts Jewish Ledger describing one couple's awesome experience participating in one.) INF has a new emissary for New England, Dar Nadler, who will be coming to our area several times in the coming months. I hope you will take advantage of the opportunity to explore all the amazing things JNF is doing, and see why this esteemed organization is worthy of your support.

members are non-Jewish residents who attend services and events such as the annual Passover seder. Members of the church across the street are especially supportive. The maintenance of the aging structure has become increasingly difficult for the tiny congregation, and it is on Mississippi's list of 10 Most Endangered Historic Places. The building is now owned by the Institute of Southern Jewish Life, and it will become a museum once the last members are gone. Shabbat Tof

Our new prayer experience—a regular Shabbat morning Musaf service with the addition of a drum or tof in Hebrew—made its debut in the fall, and will continue on the 3rd Shabbat morning of each month. The name of the service, Shabbat Tof, is a play on words since it sounds like Shabbat Tov, tov meaning good. Drumming can add a huge amount of ruach or spirit to a service and give people a sense of freedom to sing and come together. In addition, some people who have issues with musical instruments on Shabbat usually do not have the same problems with drums as they do not need to be tuned. Please join us on March 16 (no Shabbat Tof in April) to see and hear what it's all about!

We are very lucky to have percussionist Amanda Turk join us for Shabbat Tof. Amanda grew up in a very musical family and was exposed to drumming at an early age by her father who was a kit drummer. But it wasn't until she met her teacher, Raquy Danziger, in 2006 that she found her true musical calling. Since then, she has immersed herself in Middle Eastern percussion under the guidance of contemporary percussion masters. She has traveled to Turkey and Egypt to delve deeper into a style of drumming called the Turkish Split Hand Technique. In addition to playing the dumbek, she applies these principles to other types of drum, including frame drum, riq, cajon, djembe and handpan. She is passionate about sharing this unique flavor of music and infusing the many voices and artfulness of these instruments into different community events such as dance and yoga classes, Kirtans, festivals and Shabbat services. When her hands are not on a drum, Amanda nurtures her passion for bodywork with her 17-year practice in Northampton.

Hametz

Rabbi Amy Wallk Katz

Searching for the Hametz

Thursday evening, April 18

Here's how to search for hametz: on the night before the first seder, the Mishnah ordains a formal search for leaven in the home, called bedikat hametz. The following blessing is recited,

"Blessed are You, Adonai our God, Ruler of the Universe, who sanctified us by commanding us to remove all the hametz."

Then you search for \underline{h} ametz, moving from room to room. The house is darkened. The individual conducting the search carries a candle or flashlight, a wooden spoon, and a feather. As pre-placed pieces of bread (usually ten) are discovered, they are swept onto the spoon with the feather. When the search is completed, a special statement of nullification is recited, indicating that the house is now free of hametz.

This ceremony reflects a serious commitment to the traditional laws of Pesah and is an impressive experience for young children.

Burning the Hametz

Friday Morning, April 19

In the morning after seraching for the hametz, tradition calls for a simple ceremony in which the hametz gathered the previous evening is burned. The person burning the hametz says,

"All hametz in my possession, which I have not seen and have not removed, shall be nullified and be ownerless as the dust of the earth."

In traditional homes this is done before 10:00 am, after which no hametz is to be eaten.

Selling of the Hametz

Jewish tradition tells us that we are to avoid owning or deriving benefit from wheat, barley, oats, spelt, or rye.

While the law calls for the physical removal of all personally-owned leaven from the home, the rabbis realized that this practice would impose a financial hardship upon those families who had substantial amounts of hametzintheirhouseholds. Therefore, the custom evolved of simply placing all leaven in a secluded part of the home.

Traditionally upon selling hametz before Pesah, Jews donate to Maot Hittin (money for wheat). These funds are used to help Jews in need of money for celebrating the holiday. Rabbi Katz administers this fund. Mark contributions "Passover Fund" and return the form below to TBE.

Passover Dietary Traditions

The dietary laws and traditions are very complicated for Passover. For a thorough guide, visit our website at the springfield.org. We will also include a link to the site in an upcoming Shabbata-Gram email.

For those of you who would like to do "a little more" this Passover, please contact Rabbi Amy Katz at rabbikatz@tbespringfield.org.

Balaboosta Recipe Exchange

Miriam Gordan

My older son came home with this recipe from the summer program Explo,at Wellesley College back in the mid-1980s and I have been making it ever since. This simple pumpkin bread recipe is nearly foolproof and freezes well!

Pumpkin Bread (Pareve)

2/3 cup shortening

2²/3 cups sugar

3 eggs

1 15-16 oz. can of pure pumpkin

2/3 cup of water

3 1/2 cups flour

2 teaspoons baking soda

1 1/2 teaspoons salt

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 teaspoon ground cloves.

2/3 cup nuts and/or raisins (optional)

- Preheat oven to 350.° Grease 2 loaf pans (or line with parchment paper). First cream together in your mixer's bowl: shortening, sugar, eggs, can of pure pumpkin, and water.
- 2) Mix together dry ingredients: flour, baking soda, salt, baking powder, cinnamon, and ground cloves.
- Add the dry ingredients to the wet ingredients with your mixer running, and run until well mixed. You may optionally add nuts and/or raisins near the end of mixing.
- 4) Pour half of the mixture into each of the prepared loaf pans and bake at 350° for 70 minutes.

"Three Identical Strangers" Film & Discussion

Sunday, March 31 at 4:00 pm

Alan Seigel

Three Identical Strangers is a 2018 documentary film directed by Tim Wardle and starring Edward Galland, David Kellman and Robert Shafran. It examines a set of American triplets who were adopted as six-month-old infants by separate families, unaware that each child had brothers. The separations were done as part of an undisclosed scientific "nature versus nurture" twin study to track the development of genetically identical siblings raised in differing circumstances. Combining archival footage, re-enacted scenes, and present-day interviews, the documentary reveals how the brothers discovered one another at age 19 and thereafter sought to understand the circumstances of their separation.

In the end, Three Identical Strangers covers a lot of themes; medical ethics, mental health, and the questions of nature vs. nurture among them. But for some it boils down to family.

Please join us for the movie and lively discussion at the home of Andrea and Jonathan Chasen on Sunday, March 31 at 4:00 pm and enjoy a discussion on the ethical issues raised in the film. Please contact the TBE office at 733-4149 to make your reservations so the Chasens know how many people to expect.

God is the Healer of Shattered Hearts.

TBE Celebrates Birthdays

Temple Beth El recognizes members' birthdays on the second Shabbat of the month, with a few exceptions. During our Kabbalat Shabbat Friday night service and again at our Shabbat morning service, we will serenade you, enjoy special birthday treats during the appetizer buffet and Kiddush lunch, and make a fuss over your reaching another birthday!

Our upcoming birthday celebrations will take place on Friday, March 8 and Shabbat, March 9, and Friday, April 12 and Shabbat, April 13.

Watch your mail during the month prior to your birthday for a special letter inviting you to let TBE be part of your celebration. If you do not receive this letter, it's possible that we do not have your date of birth in our database. Please call our office at 733-4149 so we can update our records.

Membership Directory Available

Temple Beth El's Membership Directory is available to all members. This helpful tool includes names of members and children ages 22 and younger, along with their contact information, for those who have given us permission to include it. The Membership Directory helps our members communicate with each other, and helps in our efforts to build community.

The Membership Directory is available as a PDF, via email. It is updated in an ongoing basis; if you have any changes to your address, phone, or email, please contact Debbie Peskin in the TBE office at 733-4149 or communications@ tbespringfield.org. House Parties to Learn About Home Energy Improvements

There is a wonderful initiative from the Harold Grinspoon Foundation, called Ener-G-Save, to help homeowners in the Pioneer Valley receive a free energy assessment of their home.

Last spring, Rabbi Katz participated in this program. She noted, "At first I was reticent because when we moved here, we had an energy audit and much work was completed to better insulate our home. I didn't realize that ten years later it would be necessary to repeat the energy audit. As I think about it, it makes sense. Ten years passed since my home was first audited. The second audit has made a big difference. I now have LED lightbulbs throughout my entire home, I was given two programmable thermostats, my chimneys were resealed, and weather stripping was installed on all of the doors leading to the outside."

With Cantor Barber's energy audit, she was able to get weather stripping around her doors, LED lightbulbs, and best of all, improved insulation installed at a much reduced rate. Now her home is much warmer and cozier in the interior.

The energy audit is truly free. It's paid for by a small surcharge on your utility bill. You'll receive free LED light bulbs to replace old incandescent bulbs, a free programmable thermostat, and free air sealing of leaks around your house. In addition, the assessor will go through your home and make suggestions for better efficiency and offer cost estimates. The utility companies are covering 70% or more of the cost of additional services. This is a great opportunity to save the environment, and save on your utility bills at the same time.

Contact Ener-G-Save at (413) 279-9141 or visit ener-g-save.com to sign up. Be sure to mention that you're from TBE when you sign up. We are hoping to have 100 households participate!

If you would like to learn more about home energy improvements from someone who has done some, please join us at one of the following house parties to learn more while noshing and kibitzing:
